

ACCIDENTAL WOUND CAUSES HIS DEATH

Robert B. Waring Dies at Hospital—Funeral at Upper Marlboro.

Robert B. Waring, twenty-five years of age, who accidentally shot himself while on a train going to his work at Chesapeake Beach, yesterday morning, died at Providence Hospital at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, following a surgical operation.

Waring is thought to have shot himself while handling a pistol. He was unable to tell his sisters, who reached his bedside soon after the occurrence, just how it happened, although in a semi-conscious condition. The bullet lodged in his liver.

Young Waring was a son of the late Dr. John B. Waring, of Upper Marlboro, Md., and is survived by one brother and three sisters. Waring was formerly employed by John H. Nolan, contractor and builder, and was a popular young man.

Funeral services will be held at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Upper Marlboro, Thursday at 2 o'clock p. m. Interment will be made at Mt. Carmel Cemetery.

CORPSE IS FOUND TORN BY BIRDS

Aged Bachelor, Supposed to Have Money, Killed by —Robber.

THOMASVILLE, Ala., Oct. 23.—Luke Bradford was murdered at Octagona, Marengo county, several days ago, and his body has been found almost entirely devoured by birds of prey.

A nephew of the dead man, Tom Bradford, says that a colored man, while out opossum hunting, found a trunk near Bradford's residence, which had been opened and rifled. He went to the Bradford home, and, finding no one there, reported to the neighbors the finding of the trunk, which led to the investigation.

Mr. Bradford was an aged bachelor, a prominent farmer, and was supposed to have a large amount of money at his home.

USE OF WORD WIDOW VERSUS WIDOW WOMAN

Numerous indeed are the motives which have led and still lead men to resort to epithets. Certain of those now in use contain little more than a repetition of the same idea expressed by two different words. A part of the compound has become obsolete or archaic; hence it needs or needed to have its meaning strengthened. Luke, for instance, meant "trepid," but as it came to be somewhat unfamiliar, the word was brought out with precision by adding to it "widow." Different from this, though possibly allied to it, may be the attributive use of "widow" in the expression "widow woman." The second word of the combination is clearly unnecessary, but it may not have been so in the original Anglo-Saxon words constituted the sole distinction between "widow," a "widower," and "widuere," a "widow woman." The latter was added to create the masculine form, would be to append "woman" to the common word. If this were so, it would be almost inevitable that the combination would survive long after the necessity for it had disappeared. However this may be, the expression has subsisted for centuries in the English language, and in our version of the Bible the woman of Tekoah tells King David, "I am indeed a widow woman, and mine husband is dead," we are supplied in the same short sentence with illustrations of two different sorts of epithets. For the one, the original Hebrew is necessarily responsible for the other, the sixteenth century translators. The Wycliffe version of the fourteenth century had "woman-widow." But whatever the origin, the expression "widow woman" is as often as not used, and it is used in "Barnaby Rudge," by Dickens, when speaking in his own person, "To find this widow woman," he says. "Linked mysteriously with an ill-omened man" was a discovery that pained as much as startled him. —Thomas R. Levensburg, in Harper's for October.

STRANDED SHIP SINKING; PASSENGERS TAKEN OFF

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The Russian steamship Lithuania, which went ashore in the fog yesterday, off Skilling, with 500 passengers on board, is in a dangerous position, and can not be floated according to dispatches from Malmö, Sweden, to Lloyd's in less than eight days, even with fair weather.

The passengers have been taken off and sent to Rotterdam. One thousand tons of cargo has been lightered. The Lithuania was from Libau.

STRENUOUS WRITERS.

The chief thing in the average American novel is the amazing vitality of the author. He writes always at the top of his voice. His strenuousness is unceasing. The reader can almost see the swollen veins on his forehead, the tight-drawn mouth, and flashing eye. It is do it or die. And he never knows where to stop. With his feverish anxiety to make points he does not seem to realize when he has achieved his purpose, and frequently flounders off ineffectively. He has ideas. He has a command of language, a fatal fluency that frequently leads to his downfall. For he lacks a sense of values. He lacks self-restraint. He is full of tricks and artifice, but he is not an artist. —From an Exchange.

FENNING TESTIFIES IN CORBETT SUIT; MEMORY POOR

Frederick A. Fenning, defendant in the suit which Miss Cornelia Corbett instituted for the recovery of certain property she alleges he sold shortly after she and her mother were committed to the insane asylum, was today a witness in his own behalf. Mr. Fenning, who was appointed guardian of Mrs. Corbett, was not disposed to enlighten either the court or the jury concerning the details of the sale, and persistently refused to make his answers clear.

He evaded every effort of Miss Corbett's counsel to obtain definite information, and admitted that although he superintended the sale he made no specific effort to learn which things belonged to Miss Corbett, and which to her mother.

In describing the books which were disposed of, the majority of which are claimed by Miss Corbett, and many of which it was previously testified, contained her name on the flyleaf, Mr. Fenning grew facetious, and referred to an encyclopedia as an "antediluvian set."

It was brought out at the trial this morning that the order for the appointment of a guardian, or committee, for Mrs. Corbett was done at the request of the late Dr. Feunis S. Hamlin; that the petition to the court was drawn up in Fenning's office, and dictated by Fenning, and that he was subsequently appointed.

Another feature of the case came to light when Miss Corbett's counsel, after repeated efforts to obtain details from Fenning, caused him to acknowledge that a second-hand dealer by the name of Applestein bought one of the most valuable paintings in the collection under the name of I. Smith, and that $500 was received for the picture.

HARPER NAMES FARE COMMITTEE

President Harper, of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, named Conrad Syme, W. T. Gallier, and R. W. Henderson a committee to see the passenger agents of the railroads entering Washington regarding the proposed tax on the traveling public to pay for the new Union Station. A meeting of the committee will be held at an early date to decide upon a course of action.

The chairman and vice chairman of the various committees of the Chamber held a meeting yesterday afternoon, at which, with the dissenting vote, it was decided to urge upon the directors of the Chamber that a capable secretary be employed as soon as possible to take active charge of the work of the various committees.

STENSLAND DIRECTORS ARE CALLED FOR TRIAL

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—The directors of the defunct Milwaukee Avenue State Bank were called for trial in Judge Dupuy's court today, with Paul O. Stensland, and Henry W. Hering. The charge is embezzlement, in receiving deposits after the bank was known to be insolvent. The directors who will be called for trial are Frank R. Crane, Eloy Johnson, Marius Kirkeby, Michael A. LaBry, and Joseph Liston. The punishment provided for by the statute is imprisonment in the penitentiary from one to three years and a fine of twice the amount of the embezzled money or both.

PEACE DELEGATES EN ROUTE FOR WASHINGTON MEETING

Senator Ugarte, minister of Honduras, received word this morning from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, that Ex-President Bonilla and Senor Constantino Fiallos, delegates to the Central American Peace Conference to be held in this city next month, will reach Washington next week. They will make their headquarters in the New Willard Hotel, where Minister Ugarte now has the Honduras legation offices.

ACCENTED WRONG.

It was on a street car in the city of Washington. Two colored women, in cheaply gorgeous splendor, were talking, and one chanced to mention a Mr. "Jinks" in her conversation.

"Excuse me," said the other woman, "but his name is not 'Jinks.' It is 'Mr. Jenks.'"

"Oh, I see," said the other woman, complacently. "I see that you puts de accent on de pronoun."

Slovenly Housekeepers Blamed for Insanitation By Report of Board

Garbage and Ashes Allowed to Accumulate in Yard.

People Will Live in Houses While They Hold Together.

"Bad housekeeping is responsible for more insanitation than any other one cause," is the statement contained in the annual report of the board for the condemnation of insanitary buildings submitted to the Commissioners today.

"Many tenants," the report continues, "prefer to stand in the back door and throw their ashes and garbage in the yard rather than place them in the can for the collectors. By this process, the yard soon becomes filled to such an extent that sometimes rain falling upon it runs into the house."

"Such conditions are particularly noticeable in rows of similar houses, where some will be as clean as soap and water will make them and others

Dog Cops Arrive; Ready for Work; Beware, Criminals!

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The dog detectives have arrived—heavily veiled and incognito—and the realms of crookdom are quaking. What do they look like? Ask the chief of the dog squad, Lieutenant Vakfield. He is the only one who knows, and he will not tell. It was he who procured the canine addition to the New York police force in Belgium, and escorted them to this country on the Red Star steamship Vanderland, which reached port yesterday.

"Can the dogs be interviewed?" the lieutenant was asked as he stepped ashore.

"Yes," was the reply. "There are five of the new detectives. One passenger on the ship, who says he was bold enough to try to peek in their cages, declares that four are gray and one black. He even offered the information that they had benevolent faces and mild, tender eyes. All of which shows how complete and perfect is their disguise."

It is evidently time for the much-sought crook to look out for delicate looking "Bunks" with limp tails and drooping lids, for just this sort of dog is the one that is waiting to run him down. Deputy Commissioner Wood is primarily responsible for the introduction of the detective dog to this country. He went over to Europe with a roll of taxpayers' money not long ago and the memory that a predecessor had made the name of Piper famous by introducing the dog to the traffic squad, while ducking horses to the traffic police, department will go down in history as the assault of nature fakers.

As a result, Lieutenant Vakfield was dispatched to get the animals as soon as Commissioner Wood got back to this country, and Detective Vakfield knew how to do his duty. He put the new detectives, after carefully disguising them, in wooden crates, and deposited them at the dead of night on the boat deck of the Vanderland. He fed them when no one was looking, and he took them for promenades in the small hours of the morning.

For the time being the dogs are enjoying the seclusion of Central Park.
